CONGREGATION OF THE MISSIONARIES OF ST. FRANCIS DE SALES

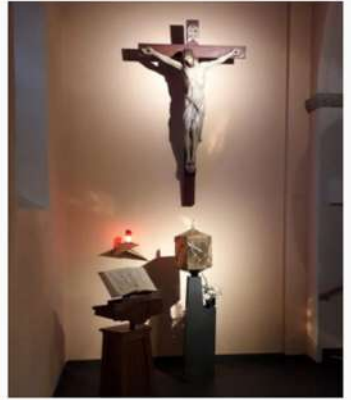

SUPERIOR GENERAL TO ALL THE MISSIONARIES OF ST. FRANCIS DE SALES

My dear Confreres,
Fraternal greetings to you! At this time of the pandemic, when the world has almost come to standstill and when we are confronted with our fragility and uncertainties of lives, we must be learning new lessons and re-setting our priorities. Let us be united in prayer and supportive in caring for each other in this difficult time. Let me share with you a few reflections for our consideration during this time of Coronavirus in the light of the feast of Transfiguration of our Lord:

CASA GENERALIZIA

ROMA, ITALIA

A. WHAT REALLY MATTERS

As Pope Francis instructed us on Palm Sunday this year, this is the time to remember “what really matters” in life: Loving God and Serving others. He said: “Look, look at the crucifix, the fullest measure of God’s love for us”. The virus is here not to make us go through the darkness but also to see what really matters. What really matters is kindness, love, generosity, and compassion. What really matters is not what we lack, but what good we can do for others. The real heroes of today are not the famous, rich, and successful people, but the doctors, nurses, health care workers, the police, teachers, elders, and all those who are giving themselves to serve others.

I am glad and proud of many of our confreres in different Provinces and mission units who are giving themselves to others through the corporal and spiritual works of mercy and spiritual and emotional online support to those struggling to cope with the crisis. I place on record the efforts of the Secretariat for Social Apostolate and Innovative Ministries and the Mission Development Office for encouraging and guiding the different Province units to reach out to the neediest people with necessities.

Do everything for God, uniting yourself to him in Word and Deed.

B. OLD NORMAL VS. NEW NORMAL

COVID – 19 has given us masks to cover our mouths and noses but has lifted the veil from our eyes. We now see clearly and differently what really matters. We begin to see the possibility of a 'new normal'. We also begin to understand that our way of life before the pandemic was not the perfect one but can be improved. We begin to see that we are all connected. No matter what part of the world we live in, we are interconnected. What was once framed as a foreign virus has come to hit almost every country. The world has come together to flatten the curve. We are willing, even at the congregational level, to collaborate with other communities and Provinces in many areas.

COVID – 19 has given us also an opportunity to see 'other viruses' that have been spreading and causing damage. We are aware of the social and spiritual viruses spreading among us from individual to individual, community to community, generation to generation, but not named. They continue to spread all kinds of sicknesses like racism, caste and regional feelings, groups, tribalism, individualism, etc that are detrimental to community life.

C. FEAST OF TRANSFIGURATION

The Feast of Transfiguration of our Lord recalls Jesus' change of appearance and God's revelation on the mountain top. The divine revelation is not for us to know about God. It is for us to know God which is transformational. When Jesus was transfigured and showed his divine nature to the Apostles, he did it so that they might be transformed with him. The transfiguration was a special event and a privileged experience to strengthen the faith of the Apostles for the challenges they would endure.

Transfiguration is transformational. Transformation is different from change. Change normally refers to new beginnings.

But transformation often happens not when something new begins, but when something old falls apart. When something so dear to us falls apart and when pain invades our soul, we are forced to listen to a deeper level and go to a new place. Most of us will not go to the new place of transformation in any other way. The pandemic is forcing us to go to a new place. Our old is falling apart at many levels. Something new will hopefully begin. The new place is, as St. Francis de Sales teaches us, a deep spiritual search among the exercises of devotion and to search only for Him.

Transfiguration of Our Lord

D. ST. FRANCIS DE SALES ON TRANSFIGURATION OF OUR LORD

In one of his sermons on Transfiguration, our Patron answers a question that many devout souls ask: How can it be known that we are advancing in prayer and, through prayer, to perfection? One of the four considerations through which we get his answer is: 'seeing only Our Lord in whatever we do'.

"The Apostles, having stood up (for they fell on their face hearing the voice of the eternal Father), saw only Jesus alone (Matt 17:6,8). That is the sovereign decree of perfection, seeing only Our Lord in whatever we do. Many refrain from looking upon others and the things of this world, but there are extremely few who no longer regard themselves. Thus do the more spiritual search among the exercises of devotion and choose those, which are more to their taste and more conformed to their inclinations. However, the only thing necessary is to see God, to search only for him, and then we will be blessed. Souls, which have attained this degree of perfection, have entirely particular care to look upon and to be held by Our Lord crucified on Calvary because they find him there more alone than in any other place. Amen. (Sermon for the 2nd Sunday of Lent -- February 23, 1614)".

GOD ALONE or SEARCH ONLY HIM is the new place of transformation that we are called to be. 'To search only for him and then, we will be blessed' (SFS). The words 'alone' or 'only for him' are to be read to check how we seek God and what the quality of our seeking is; not as describing God but as describing our way of seeking. I seek him not with others, but alone, by myself. To seek God alone, we need to have a capacity for solitude.

E. FROM LONELINESS TO SOLITUDE

One of the challenges, we may be facing more than ever, at this time of the pandemic, is loneliness as we cannot exercise our ministries, our spiritual animation to the people through sacraments, hold our meetings, do our travels, and other daily routine tasks entrusted to us.

'Doing' is being replaced by 'being'. This is hard for us who are so used to 'busy life' and finding our worth and value in 'doing instead of being'.

As celibate men, we all will agree that we encounter loneliness. We need to know how to cope with it. Loneliness is part of not only celibate life but of any state in life. It would be absurd to work on avoiding or eradicating the uncomfortable feeling of loneliness. Rather, we should work on, as spiritual writers say, passing through the doorway of loneliness to solitude. Our capacity for solitude transforms our experience of loneliness and entire life.

Solitude is our capacity to be alone, making us aware of our deepest needs and feelings, and leading us to the realization that God alone suffices. It is a journey toward a deeper and more personal relationship with God.

Is this not the ultimate goal of our celibate commitment and consecrated life? Is COVID-19 experience helping us to journey from loneliness to solitude and transforming us?

As celibate men, we experience the reality of being alone in two ways: loneliness and solitude. Loneliness is a space where we experience the absence of emotional intimacy. Knowing and being known by another is heartwarming. Each one of us wants to be known, accepted and loved. It is the absence of emotional intimacy more than the physical presence of a person that explains our loneliness. Solitude is a space in which we seek God alone and come to realize that we are deeply known by Him and completely loved by Him. 'Nothing will separate us from His Love', as St. Paul says. Solitude allows us to develop a deeply intimate one-on-one relationship with God. It allows us to seek God Alone and Search only Him. The only thing necessary is to see God, to search only for him, and then we will be blessed (SFS).

Father Abraham VETTUVELIL, MSFS
Superior General

If you question her and say: "Mother, what can we do to please you?" no doubt she will answer that she desires and wants you to do what she directed to be done at that celebrated marriage feast of Cana. ... If then you listen to her faithfully, you will hear in your heart those very words addressed to you: Do whatever my Son tells you. (St. Francis de Sales)
